OBSERVATIONS

FIFTH—The supremacy of the state over all individual desires and all private considerations must be written more solidly into the law of the land. There are thousands on thousands of Citizens in this country who still think they have private rights that take precedence over governmental prerogative. This should be corrected. We now have a law that says all children under 16 must attend school. This is only a start. I would pass a law that all children should be forced to go to school until they graduate from college. And I would include in this law that anyone who tries to teach his child at home is an enemy to public school education, is seeking to make his child "different" and is therefore opposed to the welfare of the republic.

SIXTH—Most of the crime in the country is committed by young men under the age of 21. This proves that home training, which today is a child's initial and chief preparation in morality, is a complete failure. I would therefore pass a law enabling the government to take over all the moral education of every child and make it a misdemeanor for any parent to interfere with the federal program by trying to train his child morally at home. Any parent convicted of breaking this law should be permanently deprived of his children.

SEVENTH—I would pass a law offering a reward of $1000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person for the breach of any law whatsoever. These rewards would insure law enforcement and greatly cut down the police payroll, for everyone would then be an agent of the government in law enforcement.

EIGHTH—Literature of the day is fairly reeking with sex and sedition. All this is the result of these rights we call free press and free speech. These I would abolish once and for all. I would establish a board of censors in every city acting under direct authority of the President. This board would pass on every public address before it was made and every article or book before it was printed. If anyone defied the censors and said or printed anything not approved by the board he would be sentenced to read the complete file of the Congressional Record from the date of its beginning up to the present at least twice each year.

NINTH—The horrors of individuality, combating American standardization as they do, are encouraged by the heterogeneous dress of our people. I would pass a law making everyone dress exactly alike. This would bring us all to a common level, which is the aim of democracy, and hasten a true realization of the truth that all men are created equal. It would also prevent girls from vamping men. Many girls with a flair for snappy clothes gain supremacy over their sisters by virtue of their garments. A homely girl is frequently able to beat out a prettier girl just because the homely girl has better clothes, uses sweeter perfume and more rouge. By making all girls dress alike and by prohibiting the use of paint and perfume, marriages would be the result of mental rather than physical attractions. This would greatly improve the race. Any girl caught using perfume could be sentenced to work two years in a fertilizer factory. This would be an effective punishment.

TENTH—It is true that divorcees are undermining the social fabric of the country. I propose a law that would end all this divorce business. Whenever a couple showed signs of incompatibility and started quarreling at home, it would be revealed in the radio picture machine at the federal police station. This couple could immediately be brought to court and sentenced to live together till death did them part. This would automatically halt divorcees and impose the most severe penalty imaginable on couples whose angry passions become easily aroused. It would also make people think carefully twice before marrying hastily once.

ELEVENTH—Half of the sickness in the world is due to over-eating. I would pass a law that would establish a national menu council. Menus prepared by this council would be announced a week in advance and all persons would have to eat just what this council dictated. Anyone caught disobeying this federal menu would be sentenced to live for one year on Coney Island hot dogs well slathered with mustard. This would be a humane way of killing them and after a few generations would eliminate gluttons from the race.

Will Demonstrate Nightingale Hose
At M. P. Eby Store

Eby's Dry Goods Store invites local women to a special demonstration of Nightingale hose. Miss Blanche B. Devine, pretty and entertaining demonstrator from the Nightingale factory, will be in Eby's store all day Saturday. Miss Devine holds one of the most sought after positions in the country, as she travels all over the United States and Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Eby are particularly anxious to have local women call at the store Saturday and register. They say "you may get a pair of hose for your trouble." The Ebys stated that arrangements have been made so that you would not have to be present in the store at the time the hose are given away in order to secure a pair, but you must register Saturday.

The members of the American Legion Auxiliary wish to thank all who contributed in any manner to the success of the party sale, and are particularly sensible of the generous support of the public.
